Keith Slyter

Keith Slyter is a trial consultant who aids trial teams to expertly present their cases to judges, juries, and arbitrators. In his “hot seat” role, his presentation technology skills have been demonstrated nationwide in over 500 trials in both state and federal courts. The breadth and depth of Mr. Slyter’s courtroom experience brings “fresh eyes” to each case and provides clients with a real life, in the trenches, perspective of how themes and story lines play out in front of jurors.

His extensive litigation experience comes from proactively working and managing hundreds of high-profile cases. He has logged thousands of hours preparing for and supporting arbitrations, hearings, mediations, mock trials and trials. Mr. Slyter works out of Dallas and is especially familiar with the Texas court and trial system.

He works with clients to visually present clear, concise, and compelling arguments that are well supported by key facts. Mr. Slyter frequently assists trial lawyers in working with witnesses before trial to ensure they will be able to use visual aids to help jurors accurately understand key facts.

Mr. Slyter is a member of the American Society of Trial Consultants. He is a frequent CLE speaker on effectively using technology. He is a certified Ipro TrialDirector trainer and expert. He also trains individuals and groups on TrialDirector and PowerPoint for hearings, mediation’s, arbitration’s, mock trials and trials. His expertise with TrialDirector and other trial presentation programs allows him to work seamlessly with trial teams to organize multimedia case materials and present that evidence in court.
